

In Girlhood

There is a great need of motherly watchfulness and care. A growing girl needs all her strength, and if she is nervous and melancholy, and loses appetite there is surely something wrong. This is especially true as the young girl approaches that important period of change when the womanly function is established. Timely care and proper treatment at this period may save much after suffering.

The best medicine for young girls who are nervous, melancholy, and irregular of appetite, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures nervousness, dizziness, and promotes the appetite, and gives the body robust health. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"My daughter was troubled with dizziness and constipation and was very nervous for five years," writes Mrs. M. Carter, of 115 1/2 St. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. "I tried several doctors but they gave her no relief. At times she would eat nothing, had green and purple circles under her eyes, and was melancholy. A woman friend of mine told me to try your 'Favorite Prescription' and I bought a bottle which I did. After taking one bottle of each she began to improve and is still improving. Now she looks as though she were going into a decline, she is twelve years old and she is healthy and robust, eats as much as any child, and is growing faster every day."

Secret Service Agent Donnelly, of Louisville, arrived at Grayson Wednesday, says the Grayson Tribune, and began work on a counterfeiting case.

Spurious nickles have recently gotten into circulation and the authorities were considerably worried over the matter. Agent Donnelly got a clew through the government officials here.

Wednesday, of last week, he took conveyance to Wilson creek in search of one Clinton Slusher. He found that Clinton was recuperating at the home of his father near Salversville, in Magoffin county.

The agent drove to Magoffin, captured Clint and brought him to jail here. On the trip back the agent pumped Clinton dry and secured the names of his parents on a crime.

A hurried trip was taken to Wilson and one James Pennington, a brother-in-law of Clinton, was brought in. A bar of metal, said to have been the molds before molting was found.

The agent, accompanied by Deputy Marshal Castle, then proceeded to East Fork, near Argillite in Greenup county, and arrested the Reverend Bige Slusher and son, David. Several of the spurious coins were found in the family safe vault, the old mantle clock that ran so long and well.

They were brought to town Monday. All four fessed up, waived examination and were held to Frankfort court.

"Hello, Simms, old man, I hear your old friend has rejected you."

"She has. I proposed to her in a letter and she sent it back to me with a note saying: 'We have read the enclosed MS. with much interest, and thank you for your courtesy in sending it. It is rejected, however, as we have already accepted the offer of a contributor who wrote us upon a similar theme.'—ex.

Dr. Knopf on Consumption.

Since the announcement of Dr. Koch's discovery regarding the communicable nature of tuberculosis and the fallacy of notion that it was a hereditary disease the medical profession has made some remarkable advances in the work of arresting the progress and spread of what was once regarded as an incurable malady.

The fact that these advances have been made in the theory of Dr. Koch, that the disease is infectious and that health authorities may check it by the usual agencies of isolation and infection, will attach more than ordinary interest to the statements of Dr. Knopf of New York before the conference of charities and corrections in Detroit. Dr. Knopf agreed with Dr. Koch that consumption is a communicable disease, but he declared that "it does not belong to the class of diseases properly called dangerously contagious."

He also maintained that it is now a thoroughly established fact that pulmonary tuberculosis is curable, but he ridiculed the practice of transporting patients long distances to enable them to breathe the air that is claimed to be "specific" for consumption.

"There is no such specific anywhere," said Dr. Knopf. "All that is necessary is that the patient shall have an abundance of fresh air and sunshine, pure water, and nourishing food, in addition to proper medical treatment and good care."

While the disposition of the medical fraternity to strip the disease of many of the terrors with which it was formerly invested in the popular mind is to be commended when based upon the ascertained facts of science, it may be gravely doubted whether it is wise to relax any of the health measures that have been taken on the theory that the disease is dangerously contagious.

Tuberculosis is not contagious in the same sense that small-pox is contagious, it is true, but the slow and insidious nature of its communication call for the most thorough and rigorous measures to prevent its spread.—Chicago Record-Herald.

OBITUARY.

Theolosis Lakin, son of Thomas and Martha J. Lakin, was born July 15, 1882, at Zelida, Kentucky, and departed this life June 1st, 1902, at the home of his brother-in-law G. J. Carter, Yatesville, Ky., where he had all the attention that could be given. He was a model young man and was never known to associate with wild, reckless company. He was moral from childhood until his death. He was converted at Parkersburg, W. Va., last winter, but was never baptized and received into the church until a few days before his death when he made his regret known to me, then I baptized him and received him into the M. E. Church, South.

There was never one who bore his afflictions with more patience than he did. He never complained, but little. He died of consumption. He leaves four sisters and one brother, his father and mother having preceded him to the spirit world. They that remain do not mourn as those who have no hope for they expect to meet him again in heaven.

His funeral was preached by the writer and the Rev. C. Dean at Buchanan Chapel, then he was laid beside his mother and father in the family graveyard near the old home. Many friends attended the funeral. May God bless the bereaved sisters and brother and relatives and may they meet him in heaven. R. F. Rice.

CONSTIPATED BOWELS.

To have good health, the body should be kept in a laxative condition, and the bowels moved at least once a day, so that all the poisonous wastes are expelled daily. G. L. Edwards, 142 N. Main St., Wichita, Kansas, writes: "I have used Hobbins to regulate the liver and bowels for the last ten years, and found it a reliable remedy." 50c at A. M. Hughes.

THE TWO GLASSES.

There are two glasses filled to the brim. On a rich man's table rim to rim. One was muddy and red as blood. And one was clear as the crystal flood. Said the glass of wine to the paler brother.

"Let us tell the tales of the past to each other. I can tell of banquet and revel and mirth. And the proudest and grandest souls on earth. Fell under my touch as though struck by lightning. Where I was king, for I ruled in night. From heads of kings I have torn the crown.

From the height of fame I have hurled men down. I have blasted many an honored name. I have taken virtue and given shame. I have tempted the youth with a sip of taste. That has made his future a barren waste. Far greater than kings am I. Or than any army belted the sky. I have made the arm of the driver fail. And sent the train from the iron rail. I have made good ships go down at sea. And the shrieks of the lost were sweet to me.

For they said: Behold how great you be! Fame, strength, wealth, genius before you fall. And your might and power are over all. Ho! Ho! pale brother, laugh at the wine. Can you boast of deeds as great as mine?"

Said the wine glass: "I can not boast. Of a king dethroned or a numbered host. But I can tell of a heart once sad. By my crystal drop made light and glad."

Of thirst I've quenched and brows I've fanned. Of hands I've cooled and souls I've saved. I have leaped through the valley and dashed down the mountain. Flowed in the river and played in the fountain. Slept in the sunshine and dropped from the sky. And everywhere gladdened the land—scape and eye. Have eased the hot forehead of fever and pain. I have made the parched meadow grow fertile with grain. I can tell of the powerful wheel of the mill. That ground out the flour and turned at my will. I can tell of napweed delayed by you. That I have lifted and crowned anew. I cheer, I help, I strengthen and aid. I gladden the heart of man and maid. I set the chained wind-captive free. And all are better for knowing me."

These are the tales they told each other. The glass of wine and paler brother—As they sat together filled to the brim. On the rich man's table rim to rim.

THEY CRUSH THE POWERS

This is written in mid-October. The long, oppressive summer is quite gone. Fading fast, withering trees and the rustling corn in the fields are signs of the season. Fog, frost, rain, snow—they are coming. All tomorrow last winter, of 1900 and 1901. The weather was cruel. All the thousands it killed, and the hundreds of thousands it maimed and crippled. Oh, the rough gusts it laid on men at work, women at home, and children in crabs and cradles. Gosh! that began before Thanksgiving. They are making and tearing them still, you, and growing worse as they dig deeper into the year, find throat and lungs. Many were cured by using Janssen's Patent Plaster. For the swelling and healing power of these Plasters is wonderful. They conquer the complaint.

THAT ARE KILLING THE PEOPLE.

No other plaster, no other medicine or application, can compare with them. Coughs, colds, bronchitis, rheumatism, lumbago, kidney troubles, asthma, indigestion—they all go down before Janssen's Plasters. A snowflake in the sun. You can't throw money away on a Janssen's Plaster. Everybody is going to use them this season. All druggists, or we will prepare to send you any number ordered at the United States Patent Office, New York. Satisfactory & Johnson, Mfg. Chemists, N. Y.
